4. [] ship was berthed at the cattle loading place near the former Weichselmunde Fort, when the Polish pilot left ship and boarded the pilot steamer. This steamer carried also the search group of two officers and fifteen men. The officers wore green pipings at their caps and collars, while the troops wore dungarees. Officers as well as men carried pistols. After the ship had been searched for about 45 minutes, rifle-armed sentries were posted at the gangway as well as the bows and the stern. After taking on a cargo of hogs, [] ship left Danzig-Neufahrwasser []

Danzig-Neufahrwasser Free Harbor.

Legend to Sketch:

1. Danzig-Neufahrwasser free harbor with the four merchant vessels observed.
2. Former Westerplatte ammunition harbor, occupied by four small grey vessels.
3. Old damaged quay. Part of the quay went into the river, which is marked by a wreck-buoy.
4. A new quay, about 300 meters long, concreted and with paved surface, equipped with 6 to 7 mobile slewing cranes with an estimated load capacity of 3 tons and with electric drive. One quay which also carries a track parallel to the cranes was not yet in operation prior to 8 June 1953.  the sheds on the quay were prewar buildings.
5. Small shipyard with 2 repair sheds and a small slipway which carries a small tug. Three pinnaces were worked on the shore.
6. Former Weichselmunde Port.
